SUMMARY OF THE CASE

5. The University of Rochester, Dr. Eiffert and Lisa C. Schwartz invented a unique technology that assists healthcare providers in monitoring and treating patients. Consequently, on September 2, 2003, the University of Rochester was awarded the '985 Patent.

6. My Health is an early stage company, fostering medical technologies through the proof of concept stage for larger more established entities.

7. My Health focuses on serving as a pipeline for new technologies, assisting scientist and engineers in bringing their ideas to fruition and, ultimately, to companies with the expertise to market on a global scale.

8. On August 1, 2008, the University of Rochester granted an exclusive license under the '985 Patent to My Health.

9. CardioCom has not been granted a license or any other rights to the '985 Patent.

10. It is believed that CardioCom has generated significant sales of products incorporating the University's technology, exposing CardioCom to significant liability for its infringement of the '985 Patent.

JURISDICTION AND VENUE

11. This is an action for patent infringement arising under the provisions of the Patent Laws of the United States of America, Title 35, United States Code. Subject-matter jurisdiction over Plaintiffs' claims is conferred upon this Court by 28 U.S.C. §§ 1331 and 1338(a).

12. Upon information and belief, CardioCom transacted business, contracted to supply goods or services, and caused injury to Plaintiffs within Texas and this judicial district, and has otherwise purposefully availed itself of the privileges and benefits of the laws of Texas, and is, therefore, subject to jurisdiction of this Court.

13. Upon information and belief, CardioCom placed its infringing products into the stream of commerce throughout the United States with the expectation that they will be used by consumers in this judicial district, which products and services have been offered for sale, sold, and used in this judicial district.

14. Venue is proper in this judicial district under 28 U.S.C. §§ 1391(b) and (c) and 1400(b).

INFRINGEMENT OF U.S. PATENT NO. 6,612,985

15. The '985 Patent, a copy of which is attached hereto as Exhibit A, was duly and legally issued by the United States Patent and Trademark Office. The University of Rochester is the owner by assignment of all right, title, and interest in and to the '985 Patent. My Health is the exclusive licensee of the '985 Patent, including the right to sue for and recover all past, present and future damages for infringement of the '985 Patent.

16. Upon information and belief, CardioCom, either alone or in conjunction with others, has in the past and continues to infringe, contribute to infringement, and/or induce infringement of the '985 Patent by making, using, selling and/or offering to sell, and/or causing others to use, methods and systems, including, but not limited to CardioCom's Commander, Commander Flex and Omnivisor products ("Accused Products"), which infringe one or more claims of the '985 Patent, including, but not limited to claims 1, 4, and 7 of the '985 Patent. CardioCom is liable for infringement of one or more claims of the '985 Patent, including, but not limited to claims 1, 4 and 7, of the '985 Patent pursuant to 35 U.S.C. § 271.

17. CardioCom is liable for indirect infringement of the '985 Patent by inducing and/or contributing to direct infringements of the '985 Patent committed by end users of the Accused Products.

18. At least from the time received this Complaint, CardioCom acted with intent to encourage direct infringements by its end users, and knew or should have known that its actions would induce such direct infringement.

19. At least from the time CardioCom received this Complaint, CardioCom contributed to direct infringements by its end users as described above by knowing that its Accused Product and method would be implemented by its end users; that its methods, components, system and Accused Product were designed for a combination covered by one or more claims of the '985 Patent; that there are no substantial non-infringing uses; and the Accused Product is a material part of the infringement.

20. CardioCom's acts of infringement have caused damage to Plaintiffs, and Plaintiffs are entitled to recover from CardioCom the damages sustained as a result of CardioCom's wrongful acts in an amount subject to proof at trial.

21. As a consequence of the infringement complained of herein, Plaintiffs have been irreparably damaged in an extent not yet determined and will continue to be irreparably damaged by such acts in the future unless CardioCom is enjoined from committing further acts of infringement.

PRAYER FOR RELIEF

WHEREFORE, Plaintiffs pray for entry of judgment that:

- A. CardioCom has infringed the '985 Patent;
- B. CardioCom account for and pay to Plaintiffs all damages caused by its infringement of the '985 patent in accordance with 35 U.S.C. § 284;
- C. Plaintiffs be granted permanent injunctive relief pursuant to 35 U.S.C. § 283 enjoining CardioCom, its officers, agents, servants, employees, and those persons in active concert or participation with them from further acts of patent infringement;
